Campus Location

The Australian Film Television and Radio School would like to acknowledge the Traditional Owners, the Bidjigal people and Gadigal people of the Eora Nation, on whose land we meet, work, study and teach. We pay our respects to Elders past and present, and extend our respect to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people from all nations of this land.

Located within the Entertainment Quarter, amidst the lively screen and broadcast production studios, and close to Sydney's central business district and the Eastern suburbs, the AFTRS campus is well-served by public transport. Reaching the campus is easy– there is walking distance access to the Sydney Light Rail network, there are plenty of parking options for drivers in and around the Entertainment Quarter precinct, or, if you prefer more environmentally friendly means of travel, the area is friendly to cyclists.

The iconic Bondi Beach is just 2kms to the east of AFTRS and the Sydney CBD a mere 2kms in the other direction where you'll find Chinatown, Darling Harbour, the Rocks and Circular Quay. The inner city suburbs of Darlinghurst, Redfern, Paddington and Surry Hills are in close proximity to the AFTRS campus and the inner west suburbs of Newtown and Marrickville just beyond. The sprawling Centennial Parklands surround the Entertainment Quarter and the EQ itself is home to food markets and cinemas. A world-class city, Sydney is home to a multitude of festivals and events throughout the year.

Renting tips

TIPS TO HELP YOU FIND A PLACE TO CALL HOME

1. Get in quick

Don't leave it until the last minute. Competition for rental accommodation in Sydney is very strong. Make sure you take the appropriate documents with you when viewing properties (proof of income, identification, and the names and phone numbers of three referees). You may need to place an application to rent a property on the spot, as well as providing a deposit. This may not be refundable so check with the landlord or real estate person before you commit.

2. Decide on a location

Key points to consider with location include proximity to campus, public transport options including distance and costs, and safety concerns, for example, crime rate.

Suburbs near AFTRS include:

Redfern, Surry Hills, Alexandria, Chippendale, Darlington Randwick, Darlinghurst, Paddington, Centennial Park, Woollahra, Queens' Park and Bondi Junction.

Rent in these areas can be very expensive, but affordable options can sometimes be found by searching widely. Less expensive share housing is often available in the Inner-West suburbs popular with students, include Newtown, Erskineville, Enmore, Stanmore, Glebe and Petersham. All of these areas can be reached by bus from Moore Park.

Public transport information, such as bus, light rail and train times, route maps, and fare prices can be found at transportnsw.info

3. Decide on a budget

Work out what you can afford. Keep in mind most places are advertised excluding any bills. You will usually have to add gas, electricity and internet to the rate. Remember to budget for utilities, food and transport, as well as rent. Most share situations will also require at least two weeks' rent in advance, as well as a bond (usually the equivalent of four weeks' rent), which is refundable when you leave.

4. Don't be afraid to ask questions.

5. Know your legal rights and responsibilities.

It's a good idea to make sure that you are familiar with your rights and responsibilities as a tenant. You can find more information about this at:

fairtrading.nsw.gov.au/housing-and-property/renting

6. Look before you pay.

Inspect the place before you pay any money and document any damage, such as taking photographs, prior to moving in.

7. Read contract before you sign.

8. Pay your rent on time and get receipts.

Try to arrange rent payments to be paid direct to the agent (if one is involved) or, alternatively, paid directly into the leaseholders account via internet banking so you have a record of your payments. Always avoid paying in cash. If cash is absolutely necessary, then ensure a receipt is provided every payment.

Rental and Share Housing

If you prefer more independence you may prefer to rent on your own. Alternatively, sharing with others is also a great choice. Either way it is important to remember furniture, utilities (water, electricity, gas) and food are usually not included in rental fees. Try to choose reputable real estate agents and ensure you read all the documents provided to you carefully.

Many AFTRS students will find living in shared accommodation, either with other students or the general public, is the cheapest accommodation option in Sydney. Students who share in the inner city suburbs can expect to spend $200–$300 per week, depending on the condition of the house or flat, the number of people sharing, and the suburb or location. While accommodation can be more affordable in Sydney's outer suburbs, you should take public transport accessibility and cost into account when comparing areas.

The Redfern Legal Centre (rlc.org.au) offers advice on tenancy and share housing to residents of the City of Sydney, Leichhardt and Botany Bay local government areas. For tenancy services in other catchment areas, use the Find Your Local Service function at www.tenants.org.au.

INSPECT THE PROPERTY AND ASK QUESTIONS

It is important to inspect the property, meet the other people who reside in the house or apartment and ask questions about the property.

Some possible questions include:

- What is the length of the agreement?
- Is the room furnished?
- How much is the rental bond? How is this managed? (Bonds should be lodged by the landlord or agent with the NSW Department of Fair Trading.)
- Is the flat noisy? Is it near a flight path or busy road?
- Is there parking available, and at what cost? Does street parking require a council permit?
- Is the flat safe and secure?

- What happens when there are repairs to be done? Does the leaseholder or the owners take care of repairs, or is there an agent involved?
- Is the rent paid weekly, fortnightly or monthly?
- How is a receipt provided?
- Are there any services provided with the accommodation (Foxtel, Internet, fixed phone line, etc.)? What is the average cost of the service(s)?
- Is there a cleaning schedule? Or do you have a cleaner, if so at what cost?
- Will the leaseholder or owner inspect the room prior to the new occupant moving in? How will this be documented?
- What are the other occupants' interests? How are they employed? What kind of hours do they keep?
- What are the rules about visitors?
- Is the house quite social or do you generally keep to yourself?
- What are the body corporate rules you need to be aware of (mainly in apartment buildings)?

MOVING IN

While share accommodation is commonly an informal arrangement between occupants of a property and the leaseholders or landlord, there are certain steps you can take to cover yourself.

CHANGE OF SHARED TENANCY ARRANGEMENT

Having your name added to the bond gives you no claim on the lease but does give you part ownership of the bond. This is as simple as having the occupants complete the Change of Shared Tenancy Arrangement form. This isn't mandatory however, and some leaseholders may choose to keep the bond in the same name as the lease.

BOND PAYMENT

Ensure you are given a receipt for the deposit of the bond in the leaseholder's account. An electronic transfer or cheque is good evidence of payment in case any disputes arise.

RENT PAYMENTS

Try to arrange rent payments to be paid direct to the agent (if one is involved) or, alternatively, paid directly into the leaseholders account via internet banking so you have a record of your payments. Always avoid paying in cash. If cash is absolutely necessary, then ensure a receipt is provided every payment.

CONDITION REPORT

The Condition Report is essential, as this is how agents determine that your bond should be refunded. If there is not a formal entry condition report it is recommended you take the time to document and photograph the condition of the room prior to you moving in.

This can prevent any disputes arising when you move out. If there are any issues and there is nothing documented prior to you moving in, it could result in the loss of a portion- or even the entire-bond. Make sure to sign and date any log you create and get the leaseholder to counter-sign to avoid any discrepancy when moving out.

Private student accommodation

There are also a number of private providers of accommodation for tertiary students in Sydney. These are privately-owned, fully-furnished student accommodation complexes which include a range of shared and self-contained room options.
